

Lect. Dr. Somchoke Kittisakulnam from the Program of Food Science for Health, Department of Nutrition was invited by the Faculty of Public Health, Walaya Alongkorn Rajabhat University under the Royal Patronage to joined an activity that was titled “Quality development of chewy coconut milk and sticky rice candy (Kalamae) from the Mon community”. A working group, namely Ruang-Khao, which was located at Khu Bang Luang subdistrict, Lad Lum Kaew district, Pathum Thani province, joined this activity under the quality-of-life and income improvement project for foundation communities. Dr. Somchoke also delivered the training course on: 1) Shelf-life extension of Kalamae and other Thai-style desserts and 2) Adjustment of the Kalamae production process and its packaging.

